HOWDY!

See attached – these folks are (ship) vols of ours ... Chuck is FB Friends w/ them so he has seen these & screenshotted them to me.

I had not seen them as I'm not "Friends" w/ anybody from here other than Chuck & even that's only so we can jointly maintain our pages.....

I attached 2 Word docs as well that show you some replies AND ALSO note how many times that these posts were SHARED.

Attention folks within a reasonable drive of Erie, PA.

There will be a public meeting in the auditorium of the Maritime Museum next to the Blasco Library on August 4th beginning at 5:30pm. During this meeting, an official from the Pennsylvania Historical Museum Commission will discuss the future of Brig Niagara, either with her continuing to sail on our waters as a working teaching tool or to be converted into a permanent land-based static display next to the museum. Those of us who grew up in Erie during the time when she sat on concrete pillars next to lower State Street can recall the rotting hulk that sat behind a chain linked fence.

It's time to oppose any ridiculous proposal to pull the Flagship Niagra permanently from the water and keep this valuable artifact FLOATING as a present day teaching tool of our historical past.

This is a serious threat to the US Brig Niagara's future from people who just don't understand the mission of the ship.

Technically, they have said to keep it in the water at the dock, but the deterioration will happen there as well.

Static display?!?!? That didn't work that well the last time we tried it.

 that is the point we are trying to make. Niagara needed extensive repairs after sitting at dock for two years during Covid. She needs to sail!

Ugh, I wish this was on a day when all of us out-of-towners could be there.

Yikes! Static display? So, PHMC doesn't want students to have positive life-changing experiences? Not to mention the continuity of historic skills and enrichment to the community? Have the PHMC bureaucrats been part of a live-aboard program? I'm thinking they need to spend a week or 2 on program before they entertain that kind of decision.
